

When you turn the faucet on in your house you expect water to come out full force when there's a trickle then you know that there's a problem. Such was the case recently at the homestead when a set of failures compounded and required both the jet pump and water pressure tank to be replaced (along with various pipes and fittings). How's this anything to do with the bible? Much in many ways.....

The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.
- Edmund Burke

Water in the clouds and water falling down from the clouds is pure (minus the pollution). As it falls it picks up Nitrogen and gives a natural fertilizer to the plants. It's slight acidity creates carbonic acid which dissolves minerals which plants then uptake and when people eat the plants/vegetables then they receive the blessings that the rain bestowed upon the land.

Due to Fukushima Daiichi nuclear spewing out of radiation the rain gutters are no longer directing the flow off the roof onto the waiting holding tanks below and they won't be connected for decades to come. The primary source of water now is from a well pump located 400 feet down thru alternating layers of clay and limestone.

For water to get down to that depths it first must creep thru the various strata of rock and in the process will pick up the various traits of those layers. Instead of the refreshing, clear, pure, ozone laden rain water smell we have the sulfur (rotten egg), iron (rust), hard (mineral loaded) water. The minerals encrust that which it contacts and therein lies the problem at the homestead. The sulfur smell has been controlled with bubbling ozone in the 3,000 gallon holding tank, the iron/rust is removed using a filter in transferring the water from the well's holding tank to the house holding tank. The hard water problem doesn't have a solution yet but there may be one coming soon thru an electrostatic water softener.

The mineral coating causes sealing issues in that the water squeezes thru the plumbing screw fittings. The jet pump pressurizing the house line was mounted on top of the small pressure tank in the pump house. The pump screw fittings had a small drip even after removing and replacing the plumbers tape many different times. Frustrated, I accepted the small drip as a normal thing and promised myself that "one day I would look into this problem and fix it".... One day.... Fast forward 6 years and many days later. That drip over the years caused a rust stain to appear on the pressure tank (shown to the right) which given years of inaction on my part finally rusted thru and punctured the pressured tank's bladder. Without a constant pressure volume from the pressure tank the jet pump would kick on and off every time the water faucet in the house would be turned on.

Meanwhile inside the house, the water pressure at the faucet would increase and decrease as if the water was on its last breath. The jet pump finally overheated and died from the constant on and off resulting in a small trickling of water from the faucet.

I now have learned my lesson albeit $600 later (larger capacity pressure tank, jet pump and various fittings).

The general law of moving water from one place to another is that you don't lose any along the way. It's wasteful to leak water from the pipe as it's pumped up 400 feet to the holding tank and then pumped into the house main tank and finally pumped into the house. When water drips at any point of the line then it's breaking the law of waste and breaking the law is sinful since 1 Jn 3:4 states that "...Sin is lawlessness"

What one generation tolerates, the next generation will accept.

- John Wesley

When one sees a sin being committed and does nothing about it than that person is guilty of that sin as well (Ez33:6). It is one's responsibility to root out sin in the land otherwise if it gains a toe hold without a fight then next will be a foot hold then the whole body and then sin will have free reign thru out the land.

I tolerated the sin (leaky connections) and paid the penalty for disobedience ($600 and loss of a weekend spent replacing the setup).

Sad to report that this wasn't the first time of replacing pumps out. This has been the fourth to be replaced since 1999

One pump fried because I failed to check the water level of the house holding tank where the jet pump was sucking from. The water dried up by inaction on my part - I could blame it on a hectic schedule but at the end of the day the pump is dead and I'm at Home Depot shelling out cash for another pump. Without reading your bible daily or at the minimum weekly and finding out the dos and don'ts & comparing the bible to your life - You won't know what spirit you are of (Lk9:55), your Jesus derived Spirit will dry up and in that vacuum Satan's spirit will be more than happy to fill that void (Mt12:43-45) and forever destroying your soul.

The second pump froze solid cracking the casing during a hard freeze (9 degree F) in which the heater in the pump house turned off when the power was out for a day (falling limbs on the power line). This is one of Satan's tactics is the divide and conquer. The weak link was the power grid, take out the power grid and you take away the heat and thus freeze the water. Satan divide and conquer technique works by getting the husband, wife and children sparring against each other (1Pt3:7), having a fellowship gathering divided over minor issues (Acts20:29-30) or government tactics of working you to the bone so that you are too exhausted to seek or pray to God (Ex6:9)

The third pump overheated when another freeze froze the water supply lines and holding tank water (the pump didn't freeze). With no water coming into the pump the pump overheated, smoked and died. In the parable of the sower the cares of the world choked the seed that God had planted (Mt13:7,22). One needs to constantly check their trek thru life to see if the cares of the world are choking Jesus' Spirit or are you a lamp on a lampstand (Mt5:15).

Water in the clouds is pure. As the rain falls it picks up some of the impurities of the world (pollution/corruption). When rain strikes the ground, it begins to seep thru the depths of the earth. Water picks up hardness, stench and pigmentation each layer of the earth the water seeps thru. This is similar to the world around us. Society is getting more hardened, less compassionate as time goes by. Sin is being made more accessible and those engaging in the acts are lifted up as role models. Our Pilgrim/Puritan forefathers would cry out to God seeing the sin which is tolerated today.

Life stinks for those who have been hardened (2Cor2:15-16). A rusty pigmentation covers us since the bible states that we have bloody hands (Is59:3) and that we are to wash ourselves to be white as snow (Ps51:7).

The toleration of sin is pushing sinners to new heights of immorality. Satan achieved this by:

- Encouraging vanity in a prosperous Godly society thus warping the minds of the people.
- Introducing foul language, gestures, increasingly more skin in the movies, radio, TV...
- Pushing for personal choice/law over God's law.
- Legalizing abortion (since it's a woman's choice)
- Euthanizing the old (Obamacare death panels)/Dr Kevorkian
- and now eating the young

Eating the young? Yes. I'm seeing more and more articles on child sacrifices and cannibalism. The below article on infant cannibalism and witchcraft depicts the true nature of witchcraft. The sweet, innocent picture of Harry Potter is a façade. Witchcraft is shown it's true nature as the curtain is ripped away and the pure evil exposed as the below article:

Briton arrested in Thailand after being found with six roasted human foetuses

A British citizen in Bangkok has been arrested after Thai police found six roasted human foetuses packed in his luggage.

Chow Hok Kuen, who is 28 and of Taiwanese origin, was held by police after the grisly discovery was made in Bangkok's Chinatown district yesterday.

Reports says the six foetuses had been covered in gold leaf after being roasted as part of a black magic ritual.

It is not clear where the bodies came from, but Chow Hok Kuen is believed to have been attempting to smuggle them into Taiwan.

The bodies were reportedly found in a different hotel from the one Chow Hok Kuen was staying at, but were in his luggage.

Police made the arrest after responding to information they'd received saying that infant corpses were being offered to wealthy clients via a black magic services website.

"The bodies are of children between the ages of two and seven months. Some were found covered in gold leaf," Wiwat Kumchumnan, sub-division chief of the police's Children and Women Protection unit, said.

For being in possession of the foetuses Chow Hok Kuen could now face a 2,000 baht fine and a year in prison.

It is thought the corpses were bought from a Taiwanese national for 200,000 baht ($6,40 but could have been sold for six times that amount in Taiwan.

6 dead babies being used in witchcraft services is bad enough but it gets worse. China has amped up the eating of babies to yet a new level and it's perfectly accepted and sought by many.

Thousands of pills filled with powdered human baby flesh discovered by customs officials in South Korea

- More than 17,000 pills smuggled into country have been intercepted since last August
- Pills viewed as a 'miracle cure' for all ailments - but unsurprisingly they are harmful

Thousands of pills filled with powdered human flesh have been discovered by customs officials in South Korea, it was revealed today.

The capsules are in demand because they are viewed as being a medicinal 'cure-all'.

The grim trade is being run from China where corrupt medical staff are said to be tipping off medical companies when babies are aborted or delivered still-born.

Dead baby pills: This is ground baby powder which tests discovered is 99.7 per cent human last year. South Korean officials have stopped 17,000 dead baby pills being imported since last August

The tiny corpses are then bought, stored in household refrigerators in homes of those involved in the trade before they are removed and taken to clinics where they are placed in medical drying microwaves.

Once the skin is tinder dry, it is pummelled into powder and then processed into capsules along with herbs to disguise the true ingredients from health investigators and customs officers.

The discoveries since last August has shocked even hardened customs agents who have pledged to strengthen inspections.

Chinese officials are understood to have been aware of the trade and have tried to stop the capsules being exported but thousands of packets of them have been smuggled through to South Korea.

Danger: The Chinese Ministry of Health has launched an investigation into the alleged production of pills made from dead babies

There is a huge demand for alternative Chinese remedies - which include ground up rhino horns.

The Chinese have historically consumed human placentas to improve blood supply and circulation.

Health authorities in Asia are concerned that if the powdered foetus trade is allowed to continue the capsules will find their way onto the internet and be sold to gullible or sick desperate people in other parts of the world.

The South Korean Customs Service said today that it had heightened its searches of suspicious packages being brought into the country by travellers from China in an attempt to stamp out the sickening trade.

According to customs agents, 35 smuggling attempts have been made since August last year involving more than 17,000 capsules disguised as 'stamina boosters'.

Hospitals and abortion clinics in China reportedly pass the remains onto drugs companies when a baby is stillborn or aborted, the South Korean SBS documentary team reported last year.

The San Francisco Times reported that tests carried out on the pills confirmed they were made up of 99.7 per cent human remains.

The tests were successfully able to establish the genders of the babies used.

There is a huge demand for the pills which are thought to enhance stamina. Microwave-dried placenta is also sought after for its alleged 'medicinal' benefits.

However, in reality the human flesh capsules contain super-bacteria and other harmful ingredients.

A number of smugglers who have been detained by the South Korean authorities have claimed they did not know what the ingredients were or the manufacturing process behind them.

Crackdown: Chinese officials, pictured confiscating thousands of illegal tablets, say they will clampdown on the massive herbal medicine industry which has seen dangerous bacteria and human remains added to seized pills

'Ethnic Koreans from north-east China who now live in South Korea are those who were mostly intending to use the capsules or share them with other Korean-Chinese' said a customs official.

'They are normally brought into South Korea in luggage or posted by international mail.'

The capsules were all confiscated but no one has been punished because the amount was deemed small and they were not intended for sale, a customs official added.

Chinese newspapers have identified the north eastern provinces as the source of the human flesh capsules, in particular the Jilin region which is close to North Korea.

Smuggling: More than 17,000 capsules disguised as 'stamina boosters' have been intercepted as they were smuggled into South Korea last year (file photo of Seoul airport)

There have been disturbing reports that some babies were those who had perished in China's notorious 'dying rooms' where youngsters are deliberately left to die because they were born into families that already had the limit of one child in country areas.

In order to keep its population down, China performs 13 million abortions a year - mainly because mothers sacrifice their newborns to avoid punishment such as severe fines or even a beating by the authorities.

The Chinese authorities have confirmed that 38 per cent of women of child-bearing age have been sterilised - but the babies that are aborted do not go to waste because of the sickening trade in using their corpses for purported medicinal purposes.

Despite their disgust at discovering packets of the so-called rejuvenation pills being brought in from China, South Korean officials have refused to confirm where the babies came from or who made the capsules.

Sources said this was because they were not prepared to create diplomatic friction with Beijing, preferring to leave it to Chinese officials to do something about the horrific trade in powdered babies.

Outrageous!! Asia is certainly the seat of Satan (Rev2:12-13) but you would be a hypocrite to say that Asia is the only region exploiting the unborn. Where is the outrage in the USA about Senomyx using aborted fetal cells (HEK-293) for testing out new flavor enhancers? Companies like Pepsi, Nestle and Coca-Cola send their products to them to test out. These companies may not have aborted fetal cells in their items but they have used them to develop new products

Science and medicine writer Matthew Herper offered a similar explanation in Forbes:

The fetus-derived cell line we're talking about was created around the time I was born. This is 35-year-old technology. And it is widely used in cell biology. And there is no way you'll consume them or that the cells would cause any health problems.

The cells, called HEK 293 cells (that stands for human embryonic kidney) were taken from an aborted fetus in the 1970s in the Netherlands. Bits of chopped up DNA from the adenovirus, a virus that causes a pretty severe cold. The kidney cells were forced to take up bits of DNA using a technique invented in 1973 that used a calcium solution. The resulting cells don't act much like human cells at all, but they are very easy to work with and have become workhorses of cellular biology. That's why they're used in the development of drugs and vaccines. No new fetal tissue has been used to keep the cell culture going; the use of this cell line isn't leading to new abortions.

A tiny company called Senomyx has been working to use this new technology to create food additives. Senomyx has isolated receptors found on cells that detect taste, and added them to the HEK cells. This allows them to test thousands of potential taste additives to see whether they might taste sweet or savory with a speed that would be impossible with human taste testers. Senomyx has announced collaborations with Pepsi, Nestle, and Coca-Cola.

This is similar to the US government saying that they do not torture people. They just kidnap and fly them to another nation (Syria, Egypt...) that does the torture to extract the information that they want (a process called rendition). If the person undergoing torture dies on the torture table (but the torturers really didn't mean to kill them) then the torturers are not at fault since they didn't really intend to kill the person just inflict enough pain that they will comply to any demands of the torturers (they were just "doing their job").

What did Jesus say to Pilate? Those that handed him over has the greater sin (Jn19:11).

The world is in many places no better than the Edomites dominated world of old. Dying rooms replace the public ceremonial child sacrifices. There's no national outcry in the US against China with all this information coming out. The opposite is taking place. The US is rewarding China with even more jobs and money as the US ships more jobs to China and imports more goods from China.

How did we get to this point? Toleration of spirits in the land that are not from Jesus. We tolerated the tooth fairy, the I dream of Jeanie witch shows, the harry potter, twilight, eclipse All the time leading people away from Jesus and into the waiting arms of Satan.

The world will be purged at some time in the future, will you be one of them that will be doing the purging or will you be the one purged? To purge or to be purged that is the question.

Being Biblically based is being black and white on issues. Either you are on Satan's side or Jesus' side (Mt12:30). The only way to know what the bible states is to read the bible cover to cover for yourself and comparing what you read to what society is saying is acceptable. Even if you read the bible you won't understand it unless you have a helper (Jn14:26) which will open your mind and spirit so that you will be able to understand the bible since only those in Jesus's flock can hear his words - the bible (Jn10:27). The only way to be in Jesus' flock is to be adult-full-immersion-water-baptized (for the remission of sins in the name of Jesus Christ – Acts2:38) - which is stated in the bible but what is not taught in the majority of the pulpits in the land.

Chose ye this day whom you will serve but as for me and my house we choose the Lord (Josh24:15)
